CASE STUDY

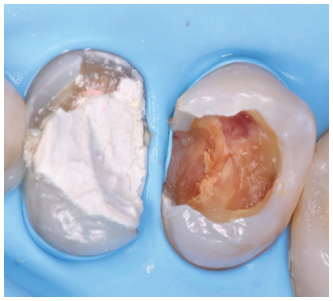

ReelMatrix™ as a Predictable Tool for Margin Elevation and Core Build-Up Prior to Indirect Restorations

Radiographic evaluation showed extensive carious lesions beneath the existing restorations.

After endodontic treatment of tooth #1.4, the provisional material from tooth #1.4 and the old restoration and carious lesion on tooth #1.5 were removed.

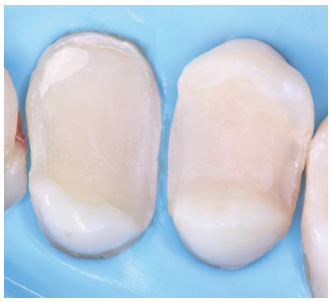

Due to the extension of the carious lesions, the cavity margins on both teeth were located at a subgingival level.

After completing the adhesive protocol using a universal adhesive system, it was decided to perform margin elevation and core build-up using the ReelMatrix™system.

A highly filled flowable composite resin, G-ænial Universal Injectable by GC, and Solare composite resin by GC were used for the restorative build-up.

Once the build-up was completed, the matrix bands were removed, and both teeth were prepared to receive indirect restorations.

In a third appointment, the indirect restorations were cemented.
